

During April, CERCA worked on a new statewide strategic plan consisting of three proposals, which are as follows:

Energy Transition

The main objectives are focused on developing programs to strengthen the electrical and telecommunications infrastructure to increase energy efficiency and build projects for the energy transition to alternative energy together with government and community actions.

Environmental health

The objective is to promote sustainable solid waste management to encourage environmental health. The intention is to work in conjunction with the community, civil society organizations, and schools.

Citizen participation

CERCA will continue to promote and encourage informative lectures in Community Development Centers, public spaces, and all Social Assistance Centers on topics such as human rights, environmental health, measures, and strategies for adaptation to climate change.

"The aquarium of the world is the air you breathe."

We want to #thank everyone who made our #awarenessrace "The Air You Breathe" possible!
To all the participants, volunteers, sponsors, and government agencies that joined, we THANK YOU!

"Think outside the box"

We appreciate COSCYT's (Consejo Sudcaliforniano de la Ciencia y la Tecnología) continued support for bringing the younger generations closer to the importance of science, their community, and their engagement with the environment!
